COMMENT OF

The Solution

THE Big Three communique on the nationalisation of the Suez Canal Company by the Egyptian government is a statesmanlike document-historically accurate, diplomatically admonishing and firmly insistent on the solution to the dispute which Col Nasser's action has created. The keypoint of the communique is the proposal to call a 24-nation conference for the purpose of reaching agreement on the necessity of the Sucz Canal remaining for all time an international waterway and then to establish an international Authority to ensure that this is made offective. Quite properly there is a proviso that legitimate Egyptian interests shall be protected.

There is little doubt that at least 22 of the proposed nations will take part in the conference and if they i can reach unanimity on ways and means of guaranteeing the international status of the canal, Col Nasser will be confronted with a moral force he will find extremely difficult. it not impossible, to resist.

Inclusion of Russia among the powers to be invited to the conference presents intriguing possibilities. So of the action and the canal will be governed. obvious danger of the Egypt would continue, once stantinople Convention of conference imply that she is prepared to throw her weight behind the proposal for the creation of an international Authority | Company Billed For the canal. The oppor tunity for indulging in political polemics might be too much for the Russians to resist.

Yet even to the Russians must be crystal clear that the conference and its decisions will offer the best chance of a peaceful and sensible solution to the canal problem, and that the best advice which they and others can give to Col Nasser is to agree to the proposal. For if he does not do so, there is little doubt that Britain and France jointly will take whatever action they deem necessary to enforce maintenance of the canal as an open waterway for the ships of all nations.

SUEZ: NEUTRALS HAVE A PLAN 1. Ownership For Egypt PEKING'S THREAT TO

UNLIKELY TO BE ACCEPTABLE BRITAIN AND FRANCE

FROM RICHARD JORGENSON

Djakarta, Aug. 3. Informed observers here believe the three "neutral" nations invited to the 24-power conference on the Suez-Indonesia, India and Ceylon-will propose a compromise which might satisfy Britain and France while enabling Col Nasser to save his face.

The compromise they believe will be based on the fact that the canal agreement of 1888 makes a clear distinction between the ownership of the canal and the rights of international shipping to use it.

The agreement provided that in 1968 ownership would formally pass to Egypt while the rights of other nations to use the canal would remain | unchanged.

The three "neutrals" will suggest that the question of ownership is | plying their gun emplacements, really a private one between Egypt and the Canal Company, while the question of use is one in which every seafaring nation has a legitimate 'island's

Port Said, Aug. 3. The Egyptian administrators of the Sucz Canal loday sent a bill to the Worms Shipping Company in Paris, indicating that trancit fees were due for two French tankers and a freighter that went through the Sucz Canal today.

In this manner, the Egyptian authorities tempurarily evaded the delicate question of demanding that the transit fees be paid by the ships themselves.

Washington, Aug. 3. Mr Walter Robertson, Assistant Secretary of State for Far East affairs, said tonight that the Chinese Communists were "feverishly engaged" in building ten new airfields capable of handling modern jet planes, on the Chinese coast close to Formosa.

Speaking to the Virginia Bar Association at White Sulphur Springs he said that the Communist attitude towards Formosa was perhaps the "gravest threat to peace in the Far East."

Dulles Confident Conference Will Succeed

Washington, Aug. 3. The Secretary of State, Mr John Foster Dulles, declared today that it was "inadmissible" that the Suez Canal should be exploited by Egypt for "highly selfish purposes."

Addressing the nution over President (clevision from Eisenhower's study in the presence of Mr Eisenhower and other Cabinet members, Mr Dulles said that if the decision of the President of Egypt. Colonel Abdol Gamai Nasser, to exploit the Suez Canal which he nationalised last week. were permissed to fo unchallenged, this would "enecurage a breakdown of the international fabric upon which the security and well being of all peoples depend,"

THE QUESTION

Mr Dulles said: "The question is not whether something should be done about this Egyptian act, but what should be done about it."

Mr Dulles said he believed that a plan for international eperation of the canal would emerge from the 24-nation conference which Britain, France and the United States foreign ministers agreed should meet in London on August 16.

This Plan should be based on certain principles, which he listed.

"If these principles are accepted by the conference, then we believe that they will also be accepted by Egypt,' he said.

How not to give a Tennis Party

Dan hosts are born and not made; not everyone can make a failure of a tennis party. Nevertheless there are certain observances which may be relied upon to reduce the chances of success.

For instance, do not roll the court before the guests arrive. Let them do it themselves while you maintain a flow of good-humoured banter.

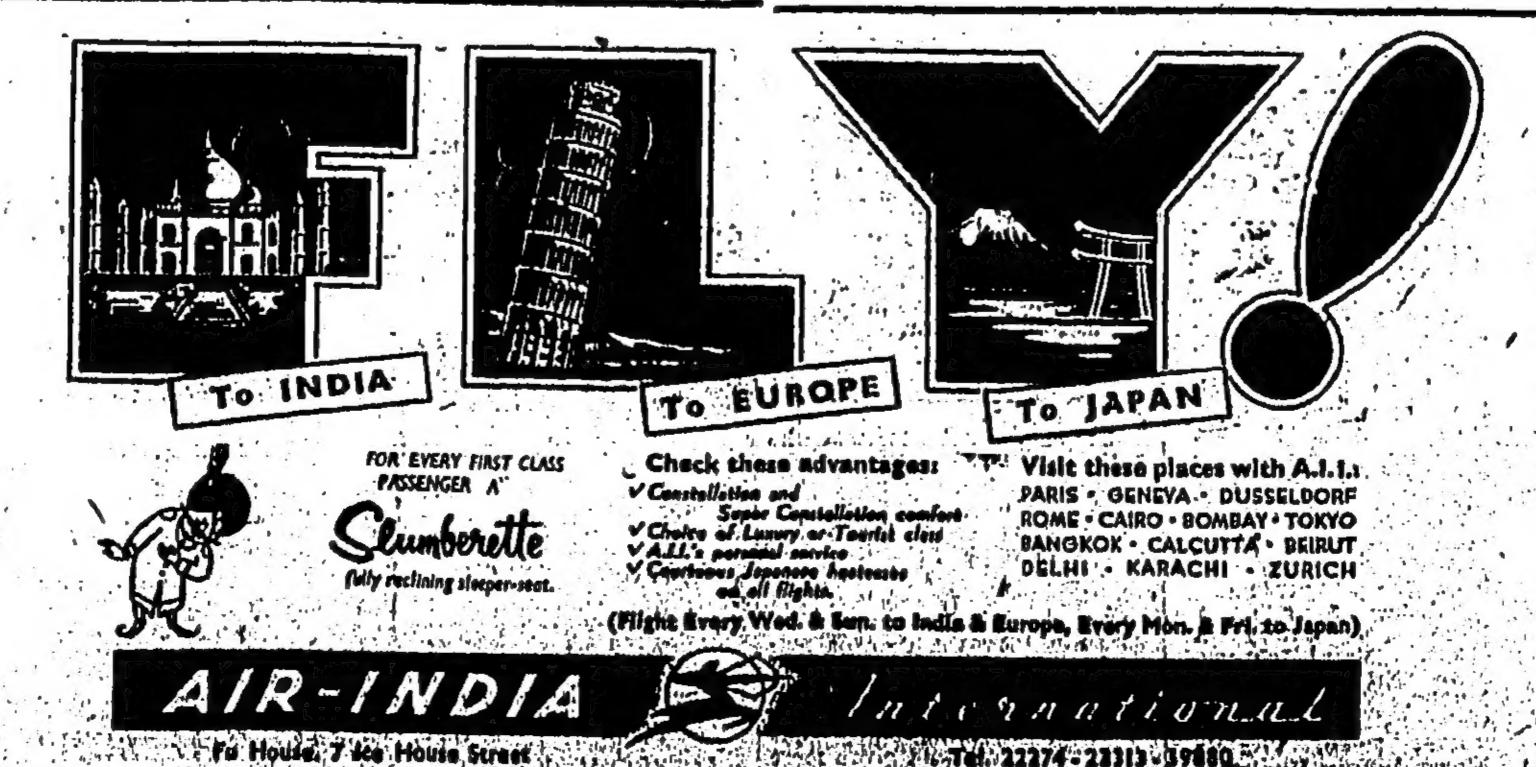

Do not mend the holes in the wire-netting. Searching for balls in the middle of a ding-dong game is a great fermenter of temper. AND ABOVE ALL, do not on any account provide long ice-cold drinks of Rose's Lime Juice for between-the-sets refreshment. If the imperfect host were to forget by chance this cardinal rule of inhospitality, the sharp and utterly satisfying tang of Nature's most thirst-quenching drink could not fall to produce content. The party would be a success.

Yes, A Must!

Las Vegas is at least one Spanish name with which most of us are familiar in so many films we have been shown it as a small circle of lights on the westwild wild west.

Surprisingly enough, "Meet Me In Las Veras" not only uses words of more than one syllable, it is gay, happy, worldly, fanciful and full of unexpected surprises.

I got most of my unjoyment of this film from the dancing of Cyd Charisse, Although little cold and-lets face it-a bit wooden in her classical danging-she is still the best on the acreen today as far as commercial ballet is concerned And if one can't see Foologn or Markova—Charisse isn't a bad compromise.

She gives us a trate of this in "Meet Me In Las Vegas" as well as a most amusing parody of what I believe is called "hoochy coochy" dancing plus yet another version of Frankie and Johnnie.

Don't run away with the idea that her version is like anyone else's, however. The story as told by the voice of Sammy Davis Jr. off sot is given a very aifferent twist and the words are well worth listening to: Frankle and Johnnie is the best number in the film.

> The hair colour is necessary to the story inasmuch as the fact that a fair-haired child is found among the Bedouins is a clue that Kilroy, in the shape of Anthony Steel, had passed by. However, whether the story came first and Steel was chosen as the itinerant Englishman to fit it, or whether his studio decided it would increase his appeal to change the colour of his hair and then commissioned a story round him, fair-haired he is and let's hope he quickly returns to his own colouring. Even Donald Sinden, who has shown that he can be a first rate actor, seems uncomfortable in the role of Steel's brother. Steel, as David Holland, wealthy young landowner, has been presumed killed in the desert during the Rommel campaign in North Africa, After the however, evidence turns up that he is not dead, and his brother, who has inherited the estates, leaves the ancestral home to embark for Tripell.

Bedouin Life

Swift as travel is these days, do think some indication should be given as 10 how Donald Sinden is whisked from the depths of the English countryside to Tripoli. One moment he is coming back from an ever - so - country - squirish walk with the dog and the mext moment, in panumu hat and lounge suit, he is descending the gangway of a ship docked in Tripoll.

Many films with a more inclodenmatic story have become plausible in the hands of n invarinative director and it only too obvious that Anthony Steel, Donald Sinden, Appa Maria Sandri and Andre Morell should have received more attention from theirs.

HITLER ALWAYS STRUCK ON

So spare a look at what 'Little Fuehrer' Nasser is grabbing · WONDER whether they are not beginning to feel a little nervous, that little group of ex-S.S. men who have been tutoring Nasser in the technique of dictatorship?

By tearing up the Sucz Canal Company's concession 12 years before its expiration Nusser like Hitler has at last united the hitherto divided West against him. He has united all that vast merchant world headed by the U.S. Britain, and France whose i whole way of life depends on the sanctity of contract and the security of shipping routes. He has mobilised against him in Washington the very men | who from mistaken judgment had been supporting him hithertoin his fight against Britain and France -- the powerful pre-sure lobby of the all companies.

I have talked with Nasser and listened to him expound his views just as I used to talk with Hitler. In my view the two men have a fundamentally similar make-up which drives them into the same mistakes.

Hitler he believes in blackmail and violence, Hitler believed he was assured of victory by his alliance with i Stalin and the mennee of his Stukas, Nasser also relies on the Russians But, above all, he believes that the advent of the hydrogen bomb has made the world safe for subversion and illegality. No one, he reckons, will, run the risk of taking suctions against him for fear of provoking on H-bomb

THIS service of the Sucz Canal is no impromptu decision though - it is as much a part of Nasser's mad "Let's try it on" plan as the treaty breaking occupation of Czechoslovakia was part of

WHY 'O HENRY'?

DOR his multitudinous * stories, William Sydney Porter used many pennames but that by which he became known throughout the world was "O. Henry,"

He enjoyed making mystery of its origin, and would sometimes give quite impossible answers to inautrers.

There are many theories. There was, for instance, a Captala Orrin Henry in charge of the guard at Ohio Penttentiary, where Porter acroed his sentence. Again it is said that, in the good of Austin, Texas, where Porter was held for a time before being moved, there was a gauter whose wife used to call out; "Oh, Henry!" when his meal was ready. Porter sometimes said that he saw the name in a newspaper in New

THIS automatic firing aisle at one of Britain's huge postwar power stations is an example of how automation Is helping to speed up output. When the power station is completed, it will have an installed capacity of 360,000 kilowatts. The old methods of firing would have been incapable of generating sufficient steam power to maintain this huge output of electricity. Coal is automatically fed into the giant boilers through the pipes seen in the photograph. The control panel is on the left.

It would, of course, be idle to draw that, but for the high level of military regulrements, the extent to which automation could raise the standard of hvare would be even greater than it has been since the war. As a result of the prevailing high level of employment, there has been a growing pressure on governments to reduce the size of their armed forces, in the interests of releasing manpower for an increase in the output of civilian goods. If largescale unemployment prevailed, Today automation need not there would be no such presforces would only swell the Government, learning from the speeding up the collection and conditions of mass unemploys. From this point of view, lessons of the aftermath of the

OUTPUT

Automation enables the comunity to combine freedom from want with freedom from because It enables industries to maintain and even Incience their output of civilian | that, whatever they do, geods in spite of limitation of manpower and in spite of having to maintain and even increase their military output

Unfortunately, automation provides effective assistance to the potential aggressor as well as to their potential victim-It is true, since totalitarion dictatorships are in a better position in time of peace to force their nations to put up with a low standard of living, from this point of view automaffor secures an advantage to democratic countries, governments of which might be forced by pressure of public opinion to neglect national desence if its requirements impose too heavy sacrifices on the civilian population, Thanks to automation, de-meetatic Governments should be in a better position politically, to keep pace with dictators in the armament tace On the other hand, the effect of automation on the speed with which the latest weapons can be produced in quantities is distinctly more helpful to aggressors than to peace-loving countries. Had Hitlor resumed power in 1953 instead of in 1933, he would not have needed anything like six years to get ready a war of aggression. Automation has made speedy armament much esasier for the AMETESSOF.

BALANCE

In any event, democratic countries would find it difficult to rearm on a large scale without being found out. Owing to automation, this would now be easier than ever for dictatorships. It is possible for them to develop prototypes of various war weapons in completo secreey, and also to produce the necessary equipment required for their manufacture. Automation has speeded up considerably the actual process of manufacturing, so that, before the democratic countries could realise what was happening, the new weapons could be produced in large quantities. This would secure for the aggressor on initial advantage of great significance.

For this reason, safety from aggression lies in a more or less evenly balanced strength between the potential op-ponents, rather than in an advanced degree of disarmament, based on "a scrap of paper," With automation, the maintenance of such strength need no longer be incompatible with the increase of prosperity. Such are the prospects progress through automation that a reasonable degree of prosperity is no longe conditioned on disarmament, any more than full employment is

Not Eye To Eye

President Eisenhower has made it plain that he would like Nixon to run with him. But would he put up a really strong fight against a stop-Nixon revolt? After all, he must publicly support Nixon who has served in office with him for four years. But he needn't split the party to keep him.

Eisenhower and Nixon have not always seen eye to eye. On foreign policy, Nixon has regularly been in favour of impetuous shows of strength, while Eisenhower has been prepared to go slowly and negotiate. On domestic policy, Nixon has often sounded rather like Senator McCarthy, Eisenhower has made no secret of his dislike of this kind of tactic.

Nixon has shown an alarming tendency to turn every issue into an issue of party politics, while Eisenhower has tried as hard as he could to be "nonpartism."

Nixon-would be a very different kind of President. The people who would willingly vote for Elechiower might not vote for Nixon at all. And, this year, a vote for Eisenhower must also be considered a vote for whoever runs with him.

TORME_A

Among the young generation of radio listeners this past week a high-spot of interest has been the arrival in Britain of America's big-selling recording-star MEL TORME. He has been talked of and praised (especially for his interpretation of the old favourite "Mountain Greenery") in thousands of homes as someone with a talent quite out of the ordinary. Mel Torme was introduced to British listeners through the radio "Show Band Show" and the columnist Cyril Stapleton

THE EUROPEAN ATHLETIC SEASON

Two Norwegians Hold The Spotlight As Olympic Games Draw

The best part of the current European athletic season is still to come and the best performances are generally achieved in August and Septem-Europe's athletes are now beginning to build up into peak form and late July performances have been very impressive.

Currently holding the spotlight as two very strong candidates for Olympic Championships are two Norwegians — Audun Boysen and Egil Danielsen.

QUALITY OF MORE Of Lawn Bowls—Or Does He? IMPORTANCE THAN FORM? -SELECTORS THINK SO

By BRUCE DOOLAND

How should a Test player be picked? On form? Or on reputation as a "quality" player? That was the question which set arguments buzzing, round the cricket pavilions of the country when the name of the Reverend David Sheppard was included in the England team for the Fourth Test at Manchester.

Make no mistake about it - David Sheppard is the "quality" player in the question. And I suppose you might include Alan Wharton and Doug Insole as the current form boys. David was picked from near retirement; Wharton, leading opening batsman of the season, was ignored and the other was thrown out after only a one innings trial.

> After Len Hutton's knighthood and the decorations handed to lan Johnson and Keith Miller at Buckingham Palace a lot of people are asking what will come Compton's way? If you were to take a ballot on the question of whom, of all these players, has given most pleasure to most people in their cricket—and surely that is a major feature of cricket greatness—1 would back Denis to top the poll. It makes you think, doesn't it?

COACHING HINT

Lift or bounce is often more important to a spin bowler than the actual amount of turn he can get on the ball. A high action is useful, but what helps even more is a little overspin. Instead of always trying to turn the ball square to the line of flight, try to impart a little top cult. If you do it the right way the ball turns and jumps.

"A cardboard box." Cricket explained, "just like the one you're leaning against now. They make little windows in 2t, tie it up with cord and put handle on it. It's just like a little house."

Picky looked surprised. Then suddenly his tail began wagging again, faster and faster. He had all at once noticed that the box he was leaning ogainst had little windows in itie Of course! The children were going to take him along! That's why they had asked him to wait outside until they were ready
